

Art for global public health and learning

Art in public health prevention.
Art for reflective dialogue in education.

KI is welcoming you to a one-day event to inspire the possibilities of art in promoting public health on a global level and as a means to stimulate active learning.

Art as medium

During the day, we will explore diverse perspectives of how art can be used to create dialogue and provide a deeper understanding of global public health challenges

Programme

We will work together to create an exciting and inspirational day and learn about the use of progressive, interactive and student-centred pedagogy in areas of major importance for global public health.

Dr Lilian Nabulime is an artist who uses sculptures in public health work to prevent HIV in rural areas. The sculptures help to raise awareness of disease transmission with a preventive purpose.

Dr Elisabeth Gaufberg applies art – visual as well as literature and music – in her teaching of medical students. Art is linked to active learning and becomes a connection between the articulated and inarticulated, promoting discussion among participants.

Wednesday 14 May, 9-15 o'clock

The day includes lectures mixed with "Master Classes" and ends with a vernissage in the evening.
Place: Lecture Hall Samuelsson, Karolinska Institutet, Solna, Tomtebodavägen 6

Register here

Vernissage 14th of May, 18-21 – “Arts in public health for global benefit”

by Lilian Nabulime
Place: Gallery Candyland, Gotlandsgatan 76
glimp.se/candyland

Meet the artist

Exhibition and mingle during lunch 16th May at 12-13 in Aula Medica - first come, first served!

Welcome!

Tanja Tomson
Programme Director,
Public Health Sciences and Global Health

Jonas Nordquist
Director Medical Case Centre

Ingemar Ernberg
Council for culture